WEATHER BUREAU BULLETIN

The Lowest Temperatures in North-west Have Been Reached.

Washington, September 15.—The weather bureau today issued the following special bulletin:

The lowest temperature of the present cold spell in the Middle West and Northwest have been reached. A somewhat lower temperature is indicated for tonight in the lower Missouri and upper Mississippi valley, but cloudiness in that region will prevent serious frost.

Denver, Colo., September 15.—Reports from the northern part of the State are to the effect that a storm prevailed there for the past twenty-four hours. In a number of places the snow fell and storm approached the proportions of a blizzard. In the mountains it has been snowing for several days. In many places the snow is reported to be ten feet deep.

Cheyenne, Wis., September 15.—A heavy snow storm has been in progress here since Sunday and shows no indication of abating. A great deal of snow has fallen, but melts almost as soon as it strikes the ground. From Laramie comes a report of a fall of eighteen inches of snow during the past twenty-four hours. Reports from the country state the grain crop in Albany county has been ruined.

Waco, Texas, September 15.—The Texas Central headquarters in this city received information this evening that it was freezing cold at Stamford, Jones county, 227 miles northwest from Waco. This was a fall of about 40 degrees.

Sherman, Texas, September 15.—About 4 o'clock this afternoon a brisk norther struck North Texas, the first cold wave of the season. It will affect the cotton outlook if it continues.

San Angelo, Texas, September

15.—The first norther of the season arrived here today. There was a drop of 30 degrees in temperature.

Denton, Texas, September 15.—A cold norther is blowing here tonight, making it almost cold enough for fires.

Denison, Texas, September 15.—An intensely cold norther blew up this evening.

THE UNIVERSAL LANGUAGE.

The Boston Herald insists that Volapuk, the fantastic creation of faddists who fancied they had invented the universal language, seems likely to have no good excuse for existing by and by, since English is moving in the direction of the fulfillment of the prophecy that our mother tongue will some time be spoken the world over. Within 100 years French has declined from the first to the fourth place among influential languages, although the use of it has increased 645 per cent. Spanish has increased 61.5; German and Russian have advanced by 150 per cent, while English, which now stands at the head, has increased 450 per cent. English is taught in all German schools and the Japanese make it a part of their regular curriculum. By and by not to know English will be to confess one's self not a "citizen of the world."—Galveston News.

"Well, what did he say?" asked the head of the firm. "He just said: 'Come around the latter part of the week and I'll pay that little bill of yours,'" replied the collector. "He did, eh? Well, you keep hot on his trail, or he'll get away from you. If he really meant to pay that bill he wouldn't call it 'little.'"
